Plane Smashes Steeple; Falls Into Street

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) - A U.S. Air Force plane carrying American students to England for Christmas hit a towering church spire today and crashed into a packed streetcar in the heart of Munich, killing 60 to 70 persons.

It was the second major air disaster in 24 hours.

Munich police said 20 persons aboard the plane were killed outright—13 students and 7 crewmen.

and 7 crewmen.

An estimated 35 persons were burned to death aboard the streetcar when it was engulfed in gasoline. Another 10 to 15 pedestrians were killed but the area was so littered with bodies an exact count was delayed.

The plane had just taken off from Munich's main airport on the outskirts of the city for the trip to Northolt air force base in England, the main U.S. military base in Britain, It faltered, then roared down onto the fog-shrouded city.

FIERY TRAIL

The plane, with the pilot fighting desperately for control, veered toward famous St. Paul's Cathedral and knocked a cross from its steeple. It careened to the tops of two houses and began to disintegrate, leaving a fiery trail of death.

The wreckage fell into the street, striking the second coach of a two-car streetcar. Passengers in the first coach escaped death but stood horrified as they heard the screams of agony from those One of Crashed Planes

American Money

IT IS EASY TO SAY THAT TOO much American money is being invested in Canada, but it is not easy to curtail this flow. Anyone who pretends that the problem is simple and can be solved by some quick stroke of government policy is only misleading the public.

In the first place, a large volume of Canada's employment today dends on imports of American capital. If they were to stop overnight thousands of Canadians would be thrown out of work. As an obvious example among many, American capital has largely provided new oil and gas pipelines whose construction has provided many jobs in Canada.

To be sure, the Canadian Gov-ernment and Parliament can encourage Canadians to invest more of their very large savings in Canadian enterprises and thus to reduce the need for American capital. nation is awaiting a policy of this sort as forecast by the recent Speech from the Throne. No doubt it will take the form of tax incen-tives to Canadian investors but it would be folly of the worst sort if it deliberately attempted to damage American investors. Mr. Diefenbaker has said as much already.

There is another form of American investment that comes under another category altogether. For the last four or five years Canadian provincial and municipal govern-ments have borrowed heavily in the United States because they could hire money there more cheaply than

Since the present Canadian Gov-ernment plunged into huge deficits and borrowed money to pay them, there was little left here for the junior governments to tap. The federal authorities having pushed up interest rates by their demands on the capital market, it was cheaper for a province or municipality to borrow in New York than in Canada.

Thus in 1956 the junior govern-ments borrowed $318 millions from American lenders; in 1957, $245 millions; in 1958, $305 millions; and in 1959, $469 millions. These are huge amounts and have two dangerous lars as they cross the boundary Hence they mean that American investors bid for Canadian dollars and bid up their price. The high-priced Canadian dollar is a serious obstacle to our exports.

The second result of these borrowings has not yet appeared but it may be extremely serious for many provinces and municipalities before long.

They have agreed to pay interest and repay principal in American dollars, without knowing what those dollars will be worth in the future. If the Canadian dollar falls below the American, as it almost certainly will at some point, and as the fir, because of its faster growth, it has often done in the past, then has enveloped the Arbutus. the borrowers will have to pay a premium on every loan.

The cost could be heavy and, in the case of weak borrowers, almost unbearable. Needless to say, it is the local taxpayer who must pay these costs. The simple fact is that the junior governments, the provincial Government of British Columbia among them, have been gambling recklessly on exchange.

Some method must be found to discourage discourage governmental borrow-ings in the United States.

It probably would be constitubut politically difficult for Parliament to provide some central machinery which could forbid a junior government to incur foreign debt if it damaged the national interest, as it certainly does at this time.

By a more palatable method Parliament could apply to the interest payable on provincial and municipal government bonds the 15 per cent withholding tax from which they are exempt for the benefit of foreign lenders.

Hes of men of small minds. Now, at the moment when it appears the dream can become, finally, a reality, B.C. and the federal Conservatives are engaged-in one of the bitterest of all bickerings.

That would be a complicated business, presumably involving a new tax agreement between Canada and the United States. But in this region of taxes the federal Government may be able to find the means of discouraging the flight of the provinces and municipalities to Wall Street.

If they borrowed only in Canada a substantial upward pressure would be removed from our dollar and the gamble in exchange, already alarm-ingly large, would be curbed. We shall soon see if Mr. Diefenbaker has something of the sort in mind.

Nature Rambles

Apparently it started off as a single tree, then a few years later the two parts grew back into a main trunk. In Thetis Park you can find an old Douglas Fir that is more than 120 feet tall. It has three distinct crowns, uni-

It could have happened perhaps 30 to 40 years ago that one of the many insects that prey on the leads of the Douglas' fir, stripped the little lead as it was growing in the spring, and the tree then put out three more from the years working on the Columbia, put in this way: "It seems incredible that grown men should act this way when you consider what is at stake."

While the ill-tempered politicians hold their press conferences to sneer at each other and issue distorted and misleading commentaries, there can be no progress. Most of the fault can be laid on the doorstep of Premier Ben-nett, whose intemperate blasts at the federal Government have distorted the what are the circumstances of Ottawa's financing offer?

First, it is important to realize that the Columbia is an international river. Ottawa and Washington are still working out the final details of a treaty for its development.

When the treaty is ratified by legislative bodies in both capitals, Ottawa will be obligated to carry out the undertakings it assumes in the treaty.

That treaty will officially establish

To assist B.C., to ease unnecessary strain on the provincial credit, Ottawa has offered to raise half the capital has offered to raise half the capital needed to build the Columbia dams. No one has ever suggested the Columbia will not be a self-liquidating project; it will be able to compete with any power system in Canada in price, and on the face of it Ottawa's offer appears to be a fairly generous proposal.

To Ottawa's dismay, Premier Ben net rejected the offer, and is now talk-ing of "going it alone." He demands a straight grant from Ottawa to help pay for the projects. Why a grant? Why should Canadian taxpayers generally subsidize a profitable provincial enter-prise?

Mr. Bennett is also burning, perhaps a small measure of justifica-tion, at Ottawa's demand that it be allowed joint control over all aspects of the development, Mr. Fulton says Ottawa has to have this measure of control to fulfill its treaty obligations. Why a simple agreement with B.C. won't do has never been fully explained.

Everyone is wondering what will happen now. If Premier Bennett goes it alone, B.C. power users are going to have to pay higher rates for their

No matter how you twist the figures, the federal Government can still borrow money more cheaply than B.C., and in power projects the capital cost, and the interest rate, are all-important, and are directly reflected in the price of power.

Promoters of the Peace River project are obviously elated at the latest turn of events, and are pouring on the steam to get their competing project rolling. If they do, the Columbia is dead for years, perhaps forever.

There is another possibility. Many people in Ottawa think the federal Government should settle the whole sorry mess by taking over the entire river development as a work for the general good of the nation, completely financed and controlled by the federal Government

Modern Democracy

The first of these is democracy as we know it today. Although the name of the thing is Greek, and the underlying theories are English, it was in the United States that modern de mocracy was born.

American-type democracy may have many imperfections, and the extreme egalitarian theories that underlie some of their institutions may seem naif to a European eye, but can one doubt that its errors are mainly on the right side? Secondly, we have the American way of life, of which much fun is made, and yet I observe that many of the ingredients in that way-of-life, haha, are being incorporated into the life-patterns of older nations as soon as they can afford them.

The American genius for labor-saving devices has transformed the homes of the world, and it is a matter for grim amusement that the Russian Ideal Home of today looks (to judge from their propaganda photographs) something that might have wo

Among the Chosen Few

The Americans, it is well known, are illiterate, so that it is rather surprising to find Henry James, T. S. Eliot and Ezra Pound on the literary mandarins' short-list for the best writers in English of the last 100 years. The influence of Hemingway and Faulkner, dos Passos and Steinbeck is to be found all over current English and French literature, and if it has proven disastrous they can and if it has proven disastrous they can hardly be blamed for that.

Talk of English literature with an educated Frenchman and share my sur-prise to discover Poe and Miller and Hemingway classed as the greatest writers in the language in front of De-·foe and-wait for it-Arnold Bennett.

Perhaps contemporary American music of the "serious" kind may have left the world unmoved, but the way things are going the only popular music in the world by 2000 will be American. School Buses and the Law

Writer T. S., of Victoria, asks if it is necessary for a motorist, under B.C.'s new school bus legislation, to stop his car if the bus is completely off the highway.

Formerly it was necessary only to slow wn to 15 miles an hour when passing a stationary school bus.

Deputy superintendent of Motor Vehicles Ray Hadfield says the important part of this new law is the flashing lights.

It doesn't matter if the bus is on the travelled part of the road, the shoulder, or completely off the highway; as long as the lights are flashing, cars must stop.

It is pointed out that school bus drivers may have their flashing lights on for the purpose of allowing children to move across the highway perhaps after the bus has been emptied at some distance from the

But it is a discretionary law and in normal circumstances it is expected that a driver who has moved his bus off the road will not have the red lights flashing.

Naval Publications Mark Anniversary

In acknowledgment of the 50th anniversary of the Royal Canadian Navy, the Times book page goes to sea today with a salute to naval tradition.

The two books-"England Expects" and "The Defeat of the Spanish Armada' of the Spanish Armada" — reviewed here by Mr. R.-H. Roy, Victoria College history lecturer, deal with maritime events of world-wide significance which established and maintained a naval tradition that is the direct ancestor

Mr. Roy, who is a member of the Board of Directors of the Maritime Museum at Esquimalt, also comments on some recent Canadian Navy publications as follows:

"During 1960, the 50th anniversary of the Royal Canadian Navy, a number of pamphlets were printed which were distributed to the many thousands of civilians who attended the various displays, parades, open houses, etc., put on by the RCN last summer. For the most part these were well worth keeping as souvenirs.

"One of them, entitled General Information, Royal Canadian Navy, Pacific Command, gives a very brief, accurate history of the navy on this coast and is well illustrated with photographs and cartoons. Its primary purpose was to serve as a source of information and as a guide more particularly to the out-of-town visitors. "Last summer also the Crowsnest, the Royal Canadian Navy's riagazine, came out with a special issue devoted to the navy's anniversary. It was a first-rate compilation of articles and photographs dealing with the navy in all its aspects during the past half century.

"The navy is frequently called 'the silent service,' and perhaps as such tends to shun publicity. When it does have something to celebrate, however, it does so with an elan the other services find hard to match.

"The pamphlets not only capture this spirit, but in their own way help to underscore it."

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

For at least 300 years a small but faithful public has read plays for pleasure, and of recent years this same public has welcomed publication of a few movie scenarios. Dylan Thomas' The Doctor and the Devils and Tennessee Williams' Baby Doll are distinguished examples of film scripts that make good reading.

But will this public enjoy reading television scripts? Three such scripts, The Quatermass Experiment, Quatermass II, and Quatermass Experiment, Quatermass III, and Quatermass and the Pit, are available in Penguin books.

These are the work of Nigel Knesle, who wrote them for British Broadcasting Corporation in 1953, 1955 and 1959, respectively.

Two excellent books, each dealing with an outstanding naval battle, will find a wide reading public in this area. Trade Parley Success

OTTAWA (CP) — The trade department's unpre-cedented export promotion conference—a hastily assembled experiment that became a smash success— closed its doors Friday a surprising twoweek run.

Unless a couple of minor miracles occur, some new records for major league baseball futility appear certain to be established next season. . . .

Stampeded by the proposed Continental League and anti-monopoly movements in the U.S. Congress, the big leagues decided to expand to 10 teams—the American League in 1961 and the National loop a year later.

. In order to fiff the rosters of its two new entries, the American circuit this week staged an unprecedented draft, instructing the Los Angeles Angels and the new version of Washington Senators to select players made available, and thus considered expendable, by other teams.

Each plucked 28 and paid more than two million bucks for the million bucks.

for the privilege, which perhaps proves that in these days of inflation even the price of headaches comes high. The new clubs are going to have nothing but trouble trying to look big leaguers with the talent they have acquired.

The most incompetent major league squad you can find in a search through the old baseball guides is the Boston Bravas of 1935, who won only 35 games and lost 115. It will be a spectacular achievement if either the Angels or Senators manage to win 30 games against the eight established clubs aext summer.

The optimists believe it will take them four years to levelop into respected opposition. I think it will take even

Biggest Problem Will Be Pitching

You can find a fair number of well-known players on the new rosters. The Angels, for instance, have Bob Cerv, Faye Throneberry, Eli Grba, Duke Maas, Eddie Yost and Ted Kluszewski. The Senators plucked Bobby Shantz, Dick Donovan, Tom Sturdivant, Dale Long and Gene Woodling.

But most of the good ones are on the downhill run.
Few expected to hold down regular jobs next season. And perhaps the biggest problems will be with the pitchers.
None of those selected won more than seven games in the majors last summer and Shantz was traded Friday for three majors last summer and Shantz was traded Friday for three minor leaguers.

Maybe it's the price of admission, but you got to admit the asking price of $75,000 per man was out of line with the talent. Jack Kent Cooke, who had hoped to obtain a hig league franchise for Toronto, may have the right idea. He abandoned his plans when he heard about the prices and commented: "Why should I pay $2,000,000 for players who belong in the minor leagues?"

One of the sorriest teams to play for Brooklyn was the Dodgers of 1938. They had pitchers like Max Butcher, Freddy Fitzsimmons, Van Lingle Mungo, Luke Hamlin, Vito Tamulis, Fred Frankhouse and Bill Posedel, yet they finshed in seventh place.

Tamulis, Fred Frankhouse and Bill Posedel, yet they linguisted in seventh place.

In that sad year the Dodgers also had Dolf Camilli, Leo Durocher, Cookie Lavagetto, Goody Rosen, Babe Phelps, Buddy Hassett, Ernie Koy and Johnny Hudson.

The buffs of Brooklyn denounced them as bums and that season the reference wasn't one of affection. I wonder, what the fans in Washington and Los Angeles will be calling the Senators and Angels along about next July.

If you asked Cougar winger George Ford for a victory mula, he'd probably tell you to "go fishing."

At least it has worked with Ford. Cougars never lost eir next game at home last season after George and Peteright, another eager angler, went fishing in Island waters. The Cats were stumbling on a four-game losing streak fore Ford got around to fishing this season. He didn't da salmon, but that night the Cats belted Winnipeg 3-1.

PICKING UP THE PIECES: New Westminster is looking for a new lacrosse coach. Fiery Jake Proctor, who has piloted the Royal City club to two Mann Cup triumphs, says he won't be returning to the boxia battles next year. When Santa Anita race track opens operations on Boxing Day, Joe Hernandez on the public address system will be working on an unbroken string of 9,624 races. He's called every gallop since the track opened in 1934. Morrison's Rockets, making their first start in the Northwest Basketball Conference at Mount View High School tonight, have to find about $1,000 this season to meet travelling expenses in the four-team inter-city circuit. Any purchases of $1 booster tickets or attendance at their games will help the paraplegics, who are unable to take part in most other sports.

One of the most unusual names in sports belongs to an apprentice jockey in Miami—Terry O'Feldman. Everybody asks, he says, how come?

"Easy," says Terry. "My mother's name was Shannon and my father's name was Feldman. When they were divorced, my mother wanted an Irish name. So she had our names legally changed to O'Feldman you don't think that's Gaelic, tell it to the judge."

Venice was always a city of traders and of artisans. The trade is off and has been for the past several hundred years or so, and the only forms of merchandise around are the tourists, glass, and antiques that are immersed in the canals for a spell to age them. One must remember that Venice was the ruling sea power of the Mediterranean, and the richest trading centre of the world. But with the Turks in the East and bickering batties with Genoa and other unfriendly types in the West began to weaken the pilings on which Venice rested.

When Diaz rounded the Cape of Good Hope and Vasco de Gama discovered the sea route to the Indies, Venice's role in shuttling goods from the easy by-way of Egypt was obsolete. As a republic she died slowly, aided by Napoleon who deposed the last of a line of 120 doges. In the early 1800s there were a thousand nobles on state relief.

Venice died slowly and bitterly. Even her famed glass industry was faced with ruin; by 1725 the number of her factories had slipped from 24 to four. To save the art the state forbade the import of foreign glass and threatened to imprison the nearest relatives of any glassmaker who left to practice his art abroad. Venice even hired thugs to stab or poison the best glassmakers of rivals cities.

BLOOMING WELL RIGHT! THIS IS CHRISTMAS IN VICTORIA?

Refusing to accept verdict of calendar, sturdy plants in Stadacona Park near Oak Bay Junction are putting on fine show for Christmas season. Times photographer Bill Halkett, who took pictures above, admitted dark green predominates in park at this time of year, but even a short walk will turn up gay splashes of color. Pansy at extreme left is rushing season by several months, since it is customarily a spring bloomer. Primula beside it, and polyanthus at far right, aren't quite as mixed up as pansy, since they always bloom early in year and are just a few weeks off schedule. Rose, second from right, actually is late. Summer is time for roses, and this little beauty is working for title of "last rose of summer." However, visitors to park could find many more.

It's the second "S" season of the year. The first was the Silly season, in the heat of summer, when front page picture ran to doggies eating ice cream cones and bare-foot moppets dashing through sprinklers in Central Park

Central Park.

The second, of course, is the current one: the Sentimental season, with pictures of pillow-stuffed Santas and turkeys going to sea on the weathership which will be 900 miles offshore come Yuletide.

So you're a newsman, and the day starts like any other day, with the local side telling you a commission of investigation has been set up to investigate something, and the wire side tells you things ain't so bongo in the Congo.

You're nuzzling coffee out of a paper cup as the semble, evaluate, and disseminate the news.

Then the even chitter-chatter of the teletype machines an adjoining room breaks with the insistent dinging a clamorous bell.

"Bulletin," says the wire editor to himself as he inders slowly in to see what the impersonal teletype a to say.

has to say.

"Bulletin," says the wire editor, coming back into the news room, now speaking, not to himself, but to all within hearing.

news room, now speaking, not to himself, but to all within hearing.

"Two passenger planes collide over New York City.

Apartment houses on fire. More than 100 killed."

You're a newsman, and it's just over a week before Christmas, and the sleep is suddenly gone from your eyes, the coffee in the paper cup forgotten.

This isn't Sentimental season news, but it's news, and you begin to re-evaluate and re-assemble in view of the electronic words chattering unto the teletypes, at first fragmentary and frightening, finally complete, cohesive, and devastating.

So you're a newsman, and you put the news together, as comprehensive and factual as possible from 3,000 miles away, and you see to it that it's disseminated through your particular medium of communication.

And then you go home, and you look at your family, and you wish you could control the news—not just assemble, evaluate, and disseminate it.

Especially during the Sentimental season.

Light Desserts Choice of Many for Christmas Feast

Bictoria Baily Eimes SAT., DEC. 17, 1960

As pleasing as the tinkle of Christmas bells - that's what the festive dessert should be. Of course, you may prefer the traditional mince pies or flaming plum pudding. But today, more and more families, particularly where there are young children, are choosing lighter desserts, using fresh fruits and ingredients not so rich.

Shown in color here are three delicious holiday desserts. Fresh Orange Christmas Mold is a light and lovely creation combining the zesty flavor of fresh lemons with the tart-sweet tang of fresh orange juice. A colorful garnish of hollyred cherries gives it the stamp of the holiday season.

Perfectly delectable is the Fresh Cranberry Cream Cheese Pie. Here a vanilla flavored cream cheese filling - whipped to a froth, baked to a rounded puff-is embellished with fresh cranberry sauce.

If you are planning a big, rich main course-roast goose, duck or pork-you may want a light dessert. Nothing will be better than a bowl of fresh Christmas fruits. This can serve two purposes -- as a colorful table decoration and as perfect ending to a heavy meal.

Fresh Orange Christmas Mold

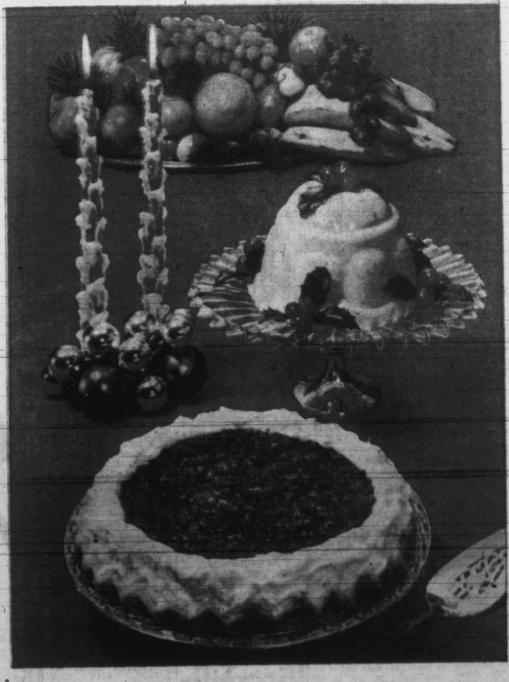

Three envelopes unflavored gela-tin; 1¼ cups cold water; 1 cup sugar; 2 tablespoons grated orange rind; 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind; frind; 2 teaspoons grace tender; 2 cup fresh emon juice; ½ teaspoon pure vanifia extract; ¼ teaspoon salt; 2 egg whites; ½ cup heavy cream, whipped; few drops yellow food coloring (optional).

Soften gelatin in % cup of the cold water. Bring remaining water to boiling point and add. Mix well. Stir in % cup of the sugar, orange and lemon rinds, juice and pure vanilla extract. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Add saft to egg whites and beat until they stand in soft, stiff peaks. Beat in remaining % cup sugar. Fold into the mixture along with whipped cream and food coloring, if desired. Turn into an oiled 6-cup mold. To serve, unmold onto a serving plate. Decorate as desired with holly and red cherries. Serve with cranberry sauce, if desired. Yield: 10 to 12 servings. Soften gelatin in % cup of the cold

STUFFINGS For the Turkey, Chicken or Duck

Try an interesting, deliciously different stuffing guaranteed to flatter your bird's special, good flavor, Delicate turkey meat takes wonderfully to a delectable mixture of bread crumbs blended with chopped blanched almonds, mushrooms, onion and a mere whisper of tarragon or basil. Chicken's gentle blandness brightens up, given a tart bread dressing spiked with apples, raisins, parsley and a dash of paprika. For a fat duck, try a piquant' stuffing of rice, apricots, pecans, celery and nut-

Be Sure Christmas Bird Is Savory Golden Brown

Let's face it, getting Christmas dinner into production and served up complete with all the trimmings is a challenge which some how often seems centred around the project of that tender, sumptuous Christmas bird . . . the turkey or goose, chicken or duck or whatever is traditional at your Whether you've sailed through dozens of hugely appetizing and memorable Yuletide feasts, or are tackling your first big holiday hurdle, the success of your meal certainly depends on the goldenbrown perfection of your Christmas bird and its mouth-watering. savory stuffing. To be perfect, the bird must be done to just the right, golden brown turn, its skin that crisp deliciousness which comes only from slow oven-roasting, and frequent, generous bastings with good butter. Meat should be moist and fork-tender . . its natural flavor brought out and flattered subtly by all the good things you've put into a companionable, savory stuffing.

Either of these two easy me thods for turkey-roasting will assure you absolute control throughout roasting time. Both begin with placing bird on a rack in roasting pan. The first trick then calls for covering turkey (capon or large chicken) with a triple layer of cheesecloth which has been dipped in melted butter. Keep a little pan of extra melted butter handy and baste frequently. The other easy idea begins with brushing bird generously with soft butter, covering with sheet of aluminum foil tucked in loosely at ends, but left open at sides. Remove foil about one hour before bird is cooked completely and don't forget to continue basting frequently with more soft butter for the even, flavorful golden browning which only butter will give it. For buttering every nook and crevice of the roasting bird, there's nothing like a small (new of course!) paint brush. Last caution: if your birt is to go to the table succulent, tender and moist remember to keep oven heat down to 325 degrees F.

This turkey is golden-brown outside, moist inside. Proper heat control, regular basting with butter and a fine stuffing all repay the cook when a delicious bird is carried to the Yuletide table.

City Jail's Top Floor Illegal?

Intermunicipal committee Friday voted to find out if th juvenile delinquents be kept in the city jail legally while awaiting trial.

The information will have a bearing on whether or not a new joint juvenile detention home is built.

Existing juvenile detention home has been described as totally inadequate. Most serious deficiency is lack of cells for destructive and hardened cases which should be segregated from minor offenders

Esquimalt representatives suggested 17 and 18-year-old delinquents could be held in the currently vacant top floor of the city police building where they would be separated from the adult jail,

PROBE ORDERED

Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch maintained provincial legislation prohibited detention of juveniles in any building containing a jail and the committee authorized city solicitor T. P. O'Grady to investigate legality of the suggestion.

Mr. O'Grady also was in torney-general's staff to discuss possible legislative amendments to the Municipal Act to clarify civic power to ban fireworks, air guns and spring guns.

Reeve Murdoch said the meeting wasn't necessary.

"I talked to Robert Bonner the other night and he said the municipalities already have the power to regulate fireworks," he said.

"To regulate, yes, but not to prohibit," replied Mayor Percy Scurrah.

Second Major Air Disaster Takes 60 Lives in Munich

Lung Damage Kills 11-Year-Old Boy

LONE SURVIVOR DIES

NEW YORK (AP) - Stephen Baltz, 11-year-old lone survivo the double plane crash over New York Friday, died today of his in-

Methodist Hospital said the main cause of his death was extensive flame damage in his lungs.

The boy died while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Baltz, stood by in prayerful vigil. Doctors at first believed the boy had a chance to recover despite his extensive injuries.

For young Stephen the jet flight from Chicago was his first airplane trip alone. He was flying to New York from Chicago to join his mother and sister on a holiday visit with relatives.

Stephen's father took him to the airport and put him on the United Air Lines' DCs.

The boy was excited during the trip and as the four-engined jet let down over New York—but let Stephen tell it:

"Then all of a sudden there was an explosion. The plane started to fall and people started to scream. "I held on to my seat and then the plane crashed. That's all I remem-

The giant craft slammed into the heart of Brooklyn.

Miraculously, little Stephen was thrown clear from the plane's tail section. He landed about 30 feet from the wreckage.

ROLLED HIM IN SNOW

"We saw the child thrown from the plane right after the crash," said New York police patrolman Joseph Manino. "His clothing was on fire. We took our coats off and began beating the fire out. We managed to get the boy on to a snowbank and rolled him around to make sure the fire was out, because his clothes were still smoldering."

Over and over the boy whispered:

"Mother . . . daddy . ."

Two priests gave last rites.

"He was conscious and kept asking me if he were going to die," said Mrs. Fletcher.

'MOTHER'S WAITING'

They took the boy to Methodist Hospital in Brooklyn, and before he lapsed into unconsciousness, he sobbed:

"Mother . . . she's waiting for me."

At Idlewild, with his nine-year-old sister, Randee, Mrs. Phyllis Baltz waited for what seemed like hours before they told her Stephen was alive.

she burst into tears—and hurried to the hospital, where she was joined-later by her husband, who had flown in from Chicago.

Once when Stephen regained consciousness, a minister told him he was in the Methodist Hospital.

"Good," said the boy, "because I'm a Methodist."

Plane Smashes Steeple; Falls Into Street

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) - A U.S. Air Force plane carrying American students to England for Christmas hit a towering church spire today and crashed into a packed streetcar in the heart of Munich, killing 60 to-70 persons.

It was the second major air disaster in 24 hours.

Munich police said 20 per-sons aboard the plane were killed outright — 13 students and 7 crewmen.

An estimated 35 persons were burned to death aboard the streetcar when it was engulfed in gasoline. Another 10 to 15 pedestrians were killed but the area was so littered with bodies an exact count was delayed.

The plane had just taken off from Munich's main airport on the outskirts of the city for the trip to Northolt air force base in England, the main U.S. military base in Britain, It faltered, then roared down onto the fog-shrouded city.

CHRISTMAS IN BLOOMING VICTORIA? IS

Refusing to accept verdict of calendar, sturdy plants in Stadacona Park near Oak Bay Junction are putting on fine show for Christmas season. Times photographer Bill Halkett, who took pictures above, admitted dark green predominates in park at this time of year, but even a short walk will turn up gay splashes of color. Pansy at extreme left is rushing season by several months, since it is customarily a spring bloomer. Primula beside it, and polyanthus at far right, aren't quite as mixed up as pansy, since they always bloom early in year and are just a few weeks off schedule. Rose, second from right, actually is late. Summer is time for roses, and this little beauty is working for title of "last rose of summer." However, visitors to park could find many more,

MONTE ROBERTS

You're a newsman. Your job is to assemble, evaluate, and disseminate the news, through one or other of the modern communications media: press, radio, and television.

It's the second "S" season of the year. The first was the Silly season, in the heat of summer, when front page picture ran to doggies eating ice cream cones and bare-loot moppets dashing through sprinklers in Central Park.

The second, of course, is the current one: the Sentimental season, with pictures of pillow-stuffed Santas and turkeys going to sea on the weathership which will be 900 miles offshore come Yuletide.

So you're a newsman, and the day starts like any other day, with the local side telling you a commission of investigation has been set up to investigate something, and the wire side tells you things ain't so bongo in the Congo.

Congo.
You're nuzzling coffee out of a paper cup as the sleep slowly leaves your eyes, you're beginning to assemble, evaluate, and disseminate the news.

Then the even chitter-chatter of the teletype machines in an adjoining room breaks with the insistent dinging of a clamorous bell.

"Bulletin," says the wire editor to minight as he wanders slowly in to see what the impersonal teletype has to say.

"Bulletin, says the wire editor, coming back into the has to say.

"Bulletin," says the wire editor, coming back into the news room, now speaking, not to himself, but to all within hearing.

"Two passenger planes collide over New York City. Apartment houses on fire. More than 100 killed."

You're a newsman, and it's just over a week before Christmas, and the sleep is suddenly gone from your eyes, the coffee in the paper cup forgotten.

This isn't Sentimental season news, but it's news, and you begin to re-evaluate and re-assemble in view of the electronic words chattering unto the teletypes, at first fragmentary and frightening, finally complete, cohesive, and devastating.

So you're a newsman, and you put the news together, as comprehensive and factual as possible from 3,000 miles away, and you see to it that it's disseminated through your particular medium of communication.

And then you go home, and you look at your family, and you wish you could control the news—not just assemble, evaluate, and disseminate it.

Especially during the Sentimental season.

Lung Damage Kills 11-Year-Old Boy

LONE SURVIVOR DIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Stephen Baltz, 11-year-old lone survivor of the double plane crash over New York Friday, died today of his in-

Methodist Hospital said the main cause of his death was extensive flame damage in his lungs. The boy died while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Baltz, stood by in prayerful vigil. Doctors at first believed the boy had a chance to recover despite his extensive injuries. For young Stephen the jet flight from Chicago was his first airplane from Chicago was his first airpiane trip alone. He was flying to New York from Chicago to join his mother and sister on a holiday visit with relatives.

Stephen's father took him to the airport and put him on the United Air Lines' DC-8.

EXCITED DURING TRIP

The boy was excited during the trip and as the four-engined jet let down over New York—but let Stephen tell it: "I remember looking out the plane

the city. It looked like a picture out of a fairy book. It was a beautiful sight.

"Then all of a sudden there was an explosion. The plane started to fall and people started to scream. "I held on to my seat and then the plane crashed. That's all I remem-

The giant craft slammed into the heart of Brooklyn. Miraculously, little Stephen was thrown clear from the plane's tail section.* He landed about 30 feet

ROLLED HIM IN SNOW

"We saw the child thrown from the plane right after the crash;" said New York police patrolman Joseph Manino. "His clothing was on fire. We took our coats off and began beating the fire out. We managed to get the boy on to a snowbank and rolled him around to make sure the fire was out, because his clothes were still smoldering."

Mrs. Dorothy Fletcher, weeping, wrapped Stephen in blankets. Some-held an umbrella over his bleeding, bruised body.

Over and over the boy whispered: "Mother . . . daddy . . . other . . . daddy . . ."

Two priests gave last rites.

"He was conscious and kept asking me if he were going to die," said Mrs. Fletcher.

'MOTHER'S WAITING'

They took the boy to Methodist Hospital in Brooklyn, and before he lapsed into unconsciousness, he sobbed:
"Mother... she's waiting

At Idlewild, with his nine-year-old sister, Randee, Mrs. Phyllis Baltz waited for what seemed like hours before they told her Stephen was to the hospital, where she was joined later by her husband, who had flown in from Chicago.

Once, when Stephen regained consciousness, a minister told him he was in the Methodist Hospital.

"Good," said the boy, "because I'm a Methodist."
